

Participation of Staff in University Employment Related Committees Guidelines

Section 1 - Guideline Statement

(1) This Guideline is intended to support the participation of staff in ACU employment-related committees.

(2) The University facilitates the participation of staff in a number of employment-related committees to support decision-making on workplace relations and People and Capability management issues and policies, and on the achievement of the University's objectives for the benefit of the ACU community through:

- a. consultation with staff;
- b. staff focus groups and open workplace forums established for this purpose; and
- c. staff participation in, or observation of, employment-related committees.

Section 2 - Application

(3) For staff who decide to make themselves available to participate in these committees, a range of factors need to be considered and are broadly outlined below.

Service

(4) Staff who participate in University employment-related committees perform important tasks and provide valuable service to the ACU community. As part of their committee role, they bring their professional knowledge, skills, and experience to support the sound management of the University.

(5) Staff who make themselves available to participate on these committees through the election or nomination process, must make themselves fully available to participate and perform their roles once they accept the responsibility of doing so.

Personal Development

(6) Participation in employment-related committees provides opportunities to learn and develop through contributing to the University. Committee and related work can provide invaluable insights and experience, as well as institutional networking opportunities and national perspectives on complex issues. The experience gained can provide insights into various aspects of University life and operations, and broaden perceptions and understanding.

Integrity of Person and Process

(7) The work of these committees impacts directly on the working life, opportunities and possibly the employment of members of the ACU community. Staff who put themselves forward to participate in such committees must exercise good judgement on behalf of the University and its members.

(8) In performing these important roles, it is incumbent upon staff participating in these committees to:

- a. perform their roles professionally and honestly;
- b. exercise integrity and, as appropriate, confidentiality at all times;
- c. uphold the Mission of the University and abide by the Code of Conduct for Staff;
- d. be fair and objective in their considerations, deliberations, judgements and recommendations; and
- e. observe and respect privacy and confidentiality in dealing with people, issues and associated documentation and records.

Conflict of Interest

(9) Staff members who are involved in University employment-related committees need to be aware of the importance of avoiding all situations in which a potential, perceived, or actual conflict of interest may arise in relation to the performance of their role.

(10) However, where this is not possible, the staff member will follow the process outlined in the Declaration of Interest Policy - Staff and Affiliates and Declaration of Interest Procedure - Staff and Affiliates.

Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion

(11) The University is committed to supporting equity, diversity, and inclusion in University employment-related committees.

(12) In nominating persons to participate in such processes, the University and Committee Chairs will work to strengthen equity, diversity, and inclusion by encouraging staff from a broad range of representative groups, for e.g., gender, sexuality, sexual orientation, cultural and linguistic diversity, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, and people with disabilities, to nominate, and be considered for election through the ballot process.

(13) In relation to some processes or activity, the university may select participation directly from such groups where the work of the committee or activity requires.

Section 3 - Procedures

Nominations and Elections

(14) Where an election of a staff participant or observer is required for any University employment-related committee, it will be conducted as a secret ballot by the nominated Returning Officer.

(15) In arranging to conduct an election, nominations will be called for in writing from staff who are eligible to nominate. The University will invite participation widely and staff from all campuses and geographic locations will be encouraged to put themselves forward for consideration through the ballot process.
